

A home for the TV

KATELL says it has come up with the answer for all those households who don't know where to position their television.

The new Vigo suite effectively provides a stand for any slim line television and also incorporates a flame effect electric fire.

The Radius fire has a curved and smoked glass fascia which is a colour match to the frame of the Vigo suite. The fire has an output of 0.75 kW and features remote control for both the flame effect and heat output.

Available with a choice of a white pebble or log fuel bed, the Vigo simply requires positioning and plugging into an adjacent power point.
